My special thanks to Mr. Nick Glennie Smith who wrote and arranged a couple of brilliant cues for this film, with through no fault of his own have been omitted from this record (but he got to play the Hammond, so he's happy, I hope). Mr. Richard Harvey somehow found time in his busy schedule to perform the more ethnic sounding instruments on this score. Those very loud drums are the creation of the very fabulous Mr. Graham Ward. The solo Cello was performed by Mr. Anthony Pleath, the solo Violin by Mr. David Emanuell. My greatest pleasure throughout the recording of this score was the chance to work with Mr. Pete Haycock again, truly one of the finest guitarists I know.

Since it was a fairly straight-ahead story, it didn't really lend itself to music the way The Lion King did.. As it turns out, it was another animated film This time, it was for Dreamworks, the Spielberg-Geffen-Katzenberg studio that competed with Disney's animated division by offering intelligent, distinctive animated alternatives to Disney's occasionally formulaic work.. Song For Guy [Single Version] 5:08 Liner Notes Given that his collaboration with lyricist on the Disney animated film The Lion King was 's most popular and acclaimed work of the '90s -- not only topping the charts, but inspiring a Broadway musical -- it made perfect sense for John to find another project for him and Rice.
